1. Introduction

1.1 Most public sector workers enjoy statutory and contractual redundancy or severance terms that are significantly better than the minimum statutory redundancy entitlement and are often higher than the value of redundancy or severance payments made in the private sector. The government is of the view that paying additional, discretionary sums on top of these entitlements (“special severance payments”) do not usually provide good value for money or offer fairness to the taxpayers who fund them and so, should only be considered in exceptional cases.

1.2 This guidance forms part of the best value regime for local authorities in England. The best value duty, as set out in section 3 of the Local Government Act 1999 (“the 1999 Act”), provides that “A best value authority must make arrangements to secure continuous improvement in the way in which its functions are exercised, having regard to a combination of economy, efficiency and effectiveness”. The best value duty is relevant to local authority duties to deliver a balanced budget (Part 1 of the Local Government Finance Act 1992), provide statutory services (including adult social care and children’s services) and secure value for money in spending decisions. This will include decisions to make Special Severance Payments.

1.3 Authorities subject to the best value duty (termed “best value authorities”) are defined in section 1 of the 1999 Act. A list of these bodies can be found at the end of this guidance.

1.4 This guidance also sets out the government’s position on the use of Special Severance Payments made by local authorities.

1.5 This guidance is issued under section 26 of the 1999 Act, the purpose of which is to:

- set out the government's view that Special Severance Payments do not usually represent value for money and should only be considered in exceptional circumstances
- set out the criteria employers should consider in the exceptional circumstances in which it may be appropriate to make a Special Severance Payment
- give examples of the exceptional circumstances in which Special Severance Payments may be appropriate
- clarify the disclosure and reporting requirements for Special Severance Payments

1.6 Severance payments can be an important mechanism to allow employers to reform and react to new circumstances in the workplace, but employers have a responsibility to ensure that Special Severance Payments are only made when there is a clear, evidenced justification for doing so. They should also ensure that all relevant internal policies and procedures have been followed and all alternative actions have been fully explored and documented.

1.7 In the exceptional circumstances where it is decided that a Special Severance Payment should be paid, it is the responsibility of individual employers to ensure their Special Severance Payments arrangements are fair, proportionate, lawful and provide value for money for the taxpayer.

2. What is a special severance payment?

2.1 In the context of this guidance, Special Severance Payments are payments made to employees, officeholders, workers, contractors, and others outside of statutory, contractual or other requirements when leaving employment in public service. Employers may sometimes consider making such a payment in situations where the individual concerned resigns, is dismissed, or agrees a termination of contract. Which types of payments are Special Severance Payments will vary according to an employee's particular circumstances, and therefore the examples below are illustrative only.

2.2 It is established case-law<sup>[\[footnote 1\]](#)</sup> that such payments, where in accordance with legislation, may only be made where there is a convincing case that they are in the interests of taxpayers. Local authorities may not be generous at the expense of taxpayers and must genuinely consider payments to be in the public interest. In taking decisions elected members must make all proper enquiries and consider all available material that can help in coming to a decision.

2.3 The following types of payments are likely to constitute Special Severance Payments:

- a) any payments reached under a settlement agreement between the employer and employee to discontinue legal proceedings without admission of fault
- b) the value of any employee benefits or allowances which are allowed to continue beyond the employee's agreed exit date
- c) write-offs of any outstanding loans
- d) any honorarium payments
- e) any hardship payments
- f) any payments to employees for retraining related to their termination of employment

2.4 The following types of payments may constitute Special Severance Payments, depending on the terms of the individual's contract, relevant statutory provisions, any non-statutory applicable schemes and other relevant terms and conditions:

- a) pay or compensation in lieu of notice where the amount of the payment is not greater than the salary due in the period of notice set out in the employee's contract
- b) pension strain payments arising from employer discretions to enhance standard pension benefits (for example under Regulation 30(5) where the employer has waived the reduction under Regulation 30(8) or because of the award of additional pension under Regulation 31)

2.5 The following do not constitute Special Severance Payments:

- a) statutory redundancy payments
- b) contractual redundancy payments, whether applicable to voluntary or compulsory redundancy, and whether agreed by collective agreement or otherwise
- c) severance payments made in accordance with that local authority's policy adopted pursuant to Regulation 7 of the Local Government (Early Termination of Employment) (Discretionary Compensation) (England and Wales) Regulations 2006
- d) a strain cost paid to the relevant LGPS administering authority under LGPS Regulation 68(2) which results from a LGPS member's retirement benefits becoming immediately payable without reduction under Regulation 30(7), or under Regulation 30(6) where the employer has waived the reduction under Regulation 30(8)
- e) payment for untaken annual leave
- f) payments ordered by a court or tribunal or agreed as part of a judicial or non-judicial mediation
- g) payments made as part of the ACAS Early Conciliation process
- h) payments made to compensate for injury or death of the worker
- i) payments made in consequence of the award of ill-health retirement benefits under Regulation 35 of the LGPS Regulations

3. Considerations for local authorities on potential Special Severance Payments

3.1 This chapter provides guidance on relevant considerations for English local authorities in relation to making Special Severance Payments.

3.2 Local authorities must comply with the duty of Best Value explained in the introduction. In considering whether it is appropriate to make a Special Severance Payment, the government expects local authorities to consider whether such a payment would be a proper use of public money. Local authorities should also monitor and review their policies on the award of special severance payments to ensure that they are also consistent with their Public Sector Equality Duty under the Equality Act 2010.

Economy

3.3 Local authorities should be able to demonstrate their economic rationale behind proposed Special Severance Payments including consideration of:

- Whether there is any feasible possibility of exiting the individual at a lower cost. Only where there is no such possibility should a Special Severance Payment be considered
- How the exit payment will be perceived by the public and whether it is in line with the duty to manage taxpayers' money appropriately
- What alternative use could be made of that expenditure. All Special Severance Payments necessarily reduce the funds that would otherwise be available to deliver important public services
- The setting of any potential precedent (e.g. where a Special Severance Payment is made to certain employees and not others)
- Evidence for additionality i.e. that those offered Special Severance Payments would not have been willing, under any circumstances, to leave with their statutory and contractual benefits alone

Efficiency and effectiveness

3.4 In considering the impact of Special Severance Payments on efficiency and effectiveness, local authorities should:

- Seek legal advice on the prospects of successfully defending an Employment Tribunal claim (or claim to any other court or tribunal with jurisdiction), if an employee were to take a legal route to appeal any grounds of their employment being terminated. The chance of success and the costs likely to be incurred should be noted and weighed up against the costs of making a Special Severance Payment

- Ensure that these payments are not used to avoid management action, disciplinary processes, unwelcome publicity or avoidance of embarrassment
- Consider aligning with private sector practice, where payments are typically less generous. This is important given the added duty in the public sector to prudently manage taxpayers' money
- Manage conflicts of interest to ensure that individuals who are the subject of complaints play absolutely no role in deciding whether those complaints should be settled by making an award to the complainant from public funds

4. Exceptional circumstances in which it may be appropriate to consider making Special Severance Payments

4.1 There may be exceptional circumstances where the existing statutory or contractual entitlements, or both, are insufficient to facilitate an exit or to offer sufficient compensation for loss of employment or office. This can apply to office holders as well as staff. These circumstances, which we expect to be exceptional and provide value for money, may be taken into account by local authorities in deciding whether or not to make a Special Severance Payment.

4.2 Authorities may consider a Special Severance Payment in order to set aside what would otherwise be a reduction in entitlement caused by a break in continuity of service (e.g. where a member of staff has taken a break in service to accompany their spouse on military service overseas). Authorities may also consider that a Special Severance Payment is appropriate in circumstances where, to help recruitment and retention, it has resolved to recognise for severance payment calculation purposes past service with another non-Modification Order employer (such as service with the NHS prior to the transfer of public health functions to local government)

4.3 Authorities may also consider a Special Severance Payment in order to settle disputes, where it can be properly demonstrated that other routes have been thoroughly explored and excluded. After receiving appropriate professional advice, it may then possibly be concluded that a special severance payment is the most suitable option and prudent use of public money.

4.4 Those approving a Special Severance Payment related to a settlement agreement should be provided with appropriate evidence that attempts were made to resolve disputes before they escalated to a legal claim. They should also bear in mind that even if the cost of defeating an apparently frivolous or vexatious claims will exceed the likely cost of that settlement to the employer, it may still be desirable to take the case to formal proceedings. This is because successfully defending such cases will discourage future frivolous or vexatious claims and demonstrate that the local authority does not reward such claims.

5. Accountability and disclosure

Accountability

5.1 The government expects that any Special Severance payments should be approved according to the following process:

- payments of £100,000 and above must be approved by a vote of full council, as set out in the Localism Act 2011
- payments of £20,000 and above, but below £100,000, must be personally approved and signed off by the Head of Paid Service, with a clear record of the Leader's approval and that of any others who have signed off the payment
- payments below £20,000 must be approved according to the local authority's scheme of delegation. It is expected that local authorities should publish their policy and process for approving these payments

5.2 Where the proposed payment is to the Head of Paid Service, to avoid a conflict of interest it is expected that the payment should be approved by a panel including at least two independent persons. A system of legal duties also requires elected members to spend public money with regularity and propriety. Under section 151 of the Local Government Act 1972, “every local authority shall make arrangements for the proper administration of their financial affairs and shall secure that one of their officers (the section 151 officer or Chief Finance Officer) has responsibility for the administration of those affairs”. The section 151 officer has an important role in holding local authorities to account and has duties to alert elected members and the auditor in the case of unlawful expenditure.

5.3 This role is complemented and reinforced by authorities’ duty under section 5 of the Local Government and Housing Act 1989 to appoint a Monitoring Officer, who must report to the local authority when any proposal, decision or omission is likely to lead to contravention of any enactment, rule of law or statutory code.

5.4 As part of their duties, an authority’s s151 Officer, and where appropriate, the Monitoring Officer, should take a close interest in and be able to justify any special severance payments that are made by that authority and in particular any payments made that are not consistent with the content of this guidance.

Disclosure

5.5 Clear and transparent reporting on exit payments is essential to make available better data on the number and level of exit payments made in local government. The availability of data on exit payments in the public domain by local authorities enables local accountability as well as effective management of public money and public confidence. In 2015, the Local Government Transparency Code was issued to increase democratic accountability through open access to information<sup>[\[footnote 3\]](#)</sup>. This sets a requirement for local authorities to publish, under the Account and Audit Regulations 2015:

- the number of employees whose remuneration in that year was at least £50,000 in brackets of £5,000
- details of remuneration and job title of certain senior employees whose salary is at least £50,000, and
- employees whose salaries are £150,000 or more must also be identified by name

In addition to this requirement, local authorities must publish, for all employees whose salary exceeds £50,000, a list of responsibilities (for example, the services and functions they are responsible for, budget held and number of staff) and details of bonuses and benefits-in-kind.

5.6 DLUHC has initiated a new annual collection of data on exit payments (initially collecting data from 2014 – 2021) and the results will be published into official statistics and made available on the gov.uk website, subject to any necessary anonymisation or redaction to comply with data protection law. This data will help others to assess the number and level of exit payments made in local government.

5.7 Section 38 of the Localism Act 2011 requires the local authority to produce and publish a pay policy statement, which must include the authority's policies on termination payments. Further guidance on the requirements of the Localism Act 2011 has been issued [\[footnote 4\]](#).

5.8 In addition, Regulation 60 of the Local Government Pension Scheme Regulations 2013 requires local authorities to prepare a statement of its policy in relation to the exercise of the discretion to enhance pension benefits under Regulations 16(2)(e) and 16(4)(d) (funding of additional pension), Regulation 30(6) (flexible retirement), Regulation 30(8) (waiving of actuarial reduction); and Regulation 31 (award of additional pension).

5.9 Regulation 10 of the Accounts and Audit Regulations 2015 require authorities to publish an annual statement of accounts, governance statement and narrative statement. As well as following existing guidance [\[footnote 5\]](#) on reporting exit payments, local authorities should also disclose in their annual accounts all severance payments, pension fund strain costs and other special severance payments made in consequence of termination of employment or loss of office (but excluding payments on death or ill-health retirement). Apart from where otherwise required by law, reporting may be anonymised to comply with data protection requirements.

List of bodies this guidance applies to

- An English local authority, including:
    - a county council in England, a district council or a London borough council
    - the Council of the Isles of Scilly
    - the Common Council of the City of London in its capacity as a local authority
    - the Greater London Authority so far as it exercises its functions through the Mayor
