Message from our Chair

A year ago I mentioned in the Annual Report that I had emailed colleagues in partner organisations to thank them for their sterling efforts in tackling the pandemic. I also wrote that 'I look forward to contacting them again when this is all over, however long that might be'. Little did I know...

Twelve months on, we are still in the throes of the COVID-19 virus although there is now cause for careful optimism. That is due to the continued vigilance and patience of the public and to the dedication and professionalism of those charged with our care and wellbeing. To everyone, and especially now to those masterminding and undertaking the vaccination programme, a heartfelt thanks for leading and managing the community towards the light at the end of the tunnel.

Staff at Healthwatch Northumberland have continued to do their work, albeit in different ways to the normal. Significant has been the work to advise and support people who have contacted us with queries or concerns related to the pandemic and the vaccinations, with valuable information about successes and concerns being conveyed to the appropriate health and care providers.

Face to face engagement, however, has been impossible and has been replaced by online forums and by inventive means to conduct surveys on issues ranging from young people's mental health, social care, GP online registration, carers and audiology. We are always grateful for the support of members of the public in passing on their experiences of health and social care services, and they can be assured that we will convey their collective thoughts to the 'powers that be' for due consideration.

Finally, a word of appreciation to the Staff, Volunteers and Board Members who have worked hard to maintain the presence of Healthwatch Northumberland as the independent voice of the people. Even during these difficult times, they succeeded in organising an Annual General Meeting which was both remote yet still meaningful. Well done.

I'd also like to thank former staff members Lesley Tweddell and Caroline Janes, board members Kelvin Rushworth and Hayley Brown and volunteer Maggie Murray for their contributions to our work and the success of Healthwatch Northumberland over the last year.

We are recruiting new Board members in autumn 2021. If after reading this you feel Healthwatch Northumberland is something you want to be involved with then do look out for our adverts and get in touch for a chat.

David Thompson
Healthwatch Northumberland Chair

"We are always grateful for the support of members of the public in passing on their experiences of health and social care services"

Message from the Chair of Adapt (NE)

I said in last year's report that I was sure, despite COVID-19 restrictions, Healthwatch Northumberland would continue to be an effective independent champion for those who rely on health and social care services across the county.

I am delighted this proved to be true. By learning new skills in using digital technology and good old-fashioned working together with voluntary and community groups, Healthwatch Northumberland has ensured the public's voice has been heard by service commissioners and providers. I say thank you to those who gave Healthwatch Northumberland feedback on their experiences of using services last year and to those who listened to it.

Adapt (NE) was delighted that Northumberland County Council extended the contract to deliver Healthwatch for a further year, giving continuity in a time of great change. It is a fitting testament to the dedication of the Board, Staff and Volunteers who kept Healthwatch Northumberland going and growing in 2020 and provides a firm foundation for the future.

Lorraine Hershon
Adapt (NE) Chair

"I say thank you to those who gave Healthwatch Northumberland feedback on their experiences of using services last year and to those who listened to it."

About us

Here to make health and care better

We are the independent champion for people who use NHS and social care services in Northumberland. We're here to find out what matters to people and help make sure your views shape the support you need, by sharing these views with those who have the power to make change happen.

Helping you to find the information you need

We help people find the information they need about services in their area. This has been vital during the pandemic with the ever-changing environment and restrictions limiting people's access to health and social care services.

Our goals

1 Supporting you to have your say

We want more people to get the information they need to take control of their health and care, make informed decisions and shape the services that support them.

2 Providing a high quality service

We want everyone who shares an experience or seeks advice from us to get a high quality service and to understand the difference that their views make.

3 Ensuring your views help improve health and care

We want more services to use your views to shape the health and care support you need today and in the future.

“Local Healthwatch have done fantastic work throughout the country during the COVID-19 pandemic, but there is more work ahead to ensure that everyone’s views are heard. COVID-19 has highlighted inequalities and to tackle these unfair health differences we will need those in power to listen, to hear the experiences of those facing inequality and understand the steps that could improve people’s lives.”

Sir Robert Francis QC, Chair of Healthwatch England

Care Home Visiting

In September 2020 it was widely reported that people living in care homes during lockdowns had struggled to keep in touch with their loved ones, as visiting restrictions were in place to protect the most vulnerable from infection.

We asked people who had loved ones living in care homes in Northumberland for their experiences of keeping in touch and we hosted a series of online forums. Three have taken place so far with a further forum scheduled in summer 2021. These forums have had a total of 35 attendees including 24 different people as many attended all or more than one forum.

Some feedback outside the forum has given examples of good practice within care homes and some attendees at forums had better experiences than others. However, feedback we received across all forums centred around the following key areas:

- Visiting and virtual contact: For various reasons including infection outbreaks many had been unable to visit in person even during periods where restrictions had been lifted. Video calls were often confusing for loved ones with dementia or hearing loss and there was inconsistent access to or ability to use devices to facilitate calls within care homes. Easier digital methods for communication like walkie talkies, baby monitors or a live transcribe service were suggested.
- Communication and activities within the home: Communication had been difficult at times and often felt to be one-sided/initiated by relatives. During visiting restrictions further communication from staff about how loved ones were spending their days would be welcome, suggestions being WhatsApp groups, emails or newsletters. More social and stimulating activities within the home for loved ones would be welcomed.

- Wellbeing, Care and Services: There was concern from relatives about their loved ones experiencing a decline in issues such as footcare, teeth, hearing aid maintenance, clothing and concern around the impact of services such as opticians, podiatry, dentists and mental health being unable to visit. There was uncertainty about how care plans were being updated during the pandemic.
- Vaccinations: Concerns about when their loved ones would be fully vaccinated as well as discussions on whether this should/could be mandatory for care home staff. Discussions around why visits could not be more readily permitted for those visitors who are fully vaccinated/regularly tested for Covid-19.
- Risk of infection vs risk of isolation: The risk of infection was recognised with many themselves worried about visiting loved ones for fear of passing on the virus, however, this needed to be balanced with the risks of isolation on wellbeing especially in 'end of life' situations.
- Effect on relatives: Whilst concern about loved ones in care homes was significant many also gave feedback on the negative effects on their own wellbeing of enforced separation including feelings of anxiety, sadness, frustration and guilt.

"The forum has been most important to me over the past year as it has been the only opportunity for me to talk about my mother's isolation during the pandemic. It has also been the only chance I have had to meet others coping with the emotional and practical difficulties of maintaining contact with relatives in care homes. My thanks to everyone at Healthwatch Northumberland for the meetings which are always conducted in a sensitive and professional way and for giving relatives a voice."

At one of our forums we were joined by Dr Jim Brown from Public Health and Alan Curry Senior Manager - Commissioning, who gave some background to the visiting guidance from a Public Health and County Council perspective. The forum was also an opportunity for relatives to ask questions and get answers to relevant concerns and give feedback on experience to commissioners directly. This feedback has been passed to providers directly from Northumberland County Council.

Those attending forums were keen to hear about good practice taking place and we have continued to ask for feedback as lockdown eases including through two online surveys; one for staff at care homes and the other for relatives of those living in care homes. These surveys are looking not only at ways of keeping in touch during the pandemic but what people would like to see moving forward. The aim is to improve experiences of staff, those living in care homes and their relatives/friends. The results of these surveys and recommendations will be reported on later in the year along with the outcomes of feedback from our forums.

GP Online Access

We were prompted to investigate the process of registration for online GP services across Northumberland after feedback from a patient about her own frustrating experience in trying to do so. Online services are not a preference for everyone but difficulties in navigating the process can limit the number of people who would choose to register and benefit from such services. Given the move towards increased use of online services it is important that thought is given to make the process user-friendly and accessible.

Our research looked at a sample of 22 GP websites across the county and in doing so identified some potential areas for improvement and areas of existing good practice.

Central to the eight key recommendations in the report is making the process of registration as simple as possible. We recommend clear links on websites to information on services covered and how to register, ideally via a 'one-click' process, limiting the amount of technical or complex information and process, ensuring websites and relevant links are up to date, in working order and can be easily used by people with different access needs.

As a result of this work we are now working with NHS Northumberland CCG on an engagement project with patients to look at improving access to GP services following the introduction of online consultation.

Online Events and Forums

Getting out and about, meeting people and hearing directly from them about their experiences of services is central to our work. When the COVID-19 pandemic started we knew we had to find ways of continuing this flow of information and keeping in touch with Northumberland's communities.

Like everyone else we learnt a lot about Zoom in a short time, including holding support sessions to help people get online and making our online platforms available to community groups so that they could carry on meeting.

In the last year we have held online events from small focus groups about specific issues such as young people's mental health, forums to discuss proposed changes to GP surgeries, to larger events including our own Annual General Meeting and an online event to promote Kooth - a young person's online support service.

In total we had 264 attendees at these events. We know not everyone can or wants to join online meetings and we are very much looking forward to seeing people in person again. However, we will keep these forums and events as part of our work and use a 'blended' approach. Online events are a good way to hear from and provide information to local communities that are spread across our large county.

"These informative and accessible events from Healthwatch Northumberland are much appreciated." (mental health event)

"Thank you for this opportunity. I thought the forum was a very measured and balanced discussion." (care homes forum)

"Excellent host - online meetings can be chaotic but in this case the event was well managed and all questions were answered." (mental health event)

Working with Others

Your Voice

Last year we launched Your Voice offering small grants to local organisations to gather their service users' experiences of health and social care services. The idea was to help us hear from people we do not hear from regularly. Although the pandemic affected the projects, each succeeded in bringing out important information and also some unexpected changes.

Being Woman, based in Ashington and Blyth, supports people from various ethnic backgrounds and at risk of social isolation and continued to do so as part of the Northumberland community response during lockdown.

61 people were surveyed by Being Woman with questions around general mental health knowledge, services used and proposed future needs. 8 out of 10 people said they did not know they could speak with their GP about anxiety, low mood and depression. Among the suggestions listed by respondents for better knowledge on mental health were leaflets, support groups, translation services, clubs and therapists.

A more detailed account is available as a blog on our website. We continue to work with Being Women on all of our projects.

Headway Arts in Blyth, hoped to film one of their creative cafes where people with a learning disability and their carers discussed their experience of the healthcare system. Instead the group held a Zoom Café workshop and you can see the recording at: bit.ly/HeadwayArtsYourVoice. Group members are very clear that what makes a good patient or service user experience for them is skilled, consistent tailored communication.

"Sometimes I feel as though I'm not told everything. Maybe they don't think I can understand or maybe they think I'll get upset."

"What does healthcare make me think of? All the places we go to for health reasons."

Headway Arts Creative Cafe participants

Northumberland County Blind Association (NCBA) supports people with sight loss across the county and sent out a survey to find out how lockdowns affected them. Over 200 people responded with some clear concerns and aspirations for improving services.

One clear message links to the wider determinates of health. People were asked how active they were pre Covid - 72% of respondents said not active or just sometimes. 57% said they would like to be more active. NCBA said "Visually impaired people have some of the most sedentary lifestyles, we are not aware of any adapted physical activities for people with a sight loss in Northumberland".

There were mixed views amongst NCBA service users about how well services worked together, how services communicated with them and what equipment and emotional and mental health support was available.

We also supported Northumberland Youth Service in the design and production of information cards which are available in all schools and youth groups.

Benefits of Collaboration

The point of the Your Voice project was to gather experiences, however, we were delighted with some additional benefits to the relationships we have built with and between other organisations.

During lockdown Healthwatch staff and volunteers joined NCBA volunteers in making regular phone calls to people who were not able to attend their usual groups with NCBA. The calls were greatly appreciated for breaking isolation, loneliness and helping with the practical challenges of lockdown.

Being Women, Healthwatch and Northumberland Clinical Commissioning Group worked together to engage with the patients of Laburnum Surgery when it closed. This joint approach ensured that everyone had the opportunity to be heard.

The most unanticipated outcome from Your Voice was that Fareeha Usman, Being Woman's Chief Executive was co-opted to the Healthwatch Northumberland Board.

Fareeha's knowledge and experience from different industries, especially with digital engagement will be a great help as we consolidate our online experiences during COVID-19.

Northumberland Recovery College

Last year we reported our work about the NHS Long Term Plan had highlighted the need for a Recovery College in Northumberland.

Recovery Colleges offer people experiencing mental ill health opportunities to take control and become an expert in their own well-being and recovery. People may use the college as an alternative to mental health services, alongside support offered from mental health services, or to help them move out of mainstream mental health services.

We convened and led a discussion with statutory and voluntary sector organisations which support people with mental health issues to get a strong collaborative approach started and then helped select Mental Health Concern as the organisation to lead the Northumberland Recovery College.

As part of the Community Mental Health Transformation Forum we are working to make sure service user and carer views are integral to the Recovery College. Having a strong Voluntary and Community Alliance is part of this. We have used our links with the Northumberland VCS Assembly Health and Social Care Online Network to establish good communications and awareness between the Recovery College and community groups across the county.

'A Recovery College is not a building or a place, it's an opportunity to become your own expert in what works to manage your wellbeing. A Recovery College provides learning experiences, mutual support and activities at a pace that is right for you.'

Northumberland Recovery College website

"Healthwatch Northumberland's support and expertise in the engagement of third sector providers was invaluable to the process. Their facilitation of the engagement event and objective assessment of the submitted proposals aided the establishment of a long awaited Northumberland Recovery College."

Alane Bould, Head of Patient and Carer Involvement, Cumbria, Northumberland Tyne and Wear NHS Trust

Valens Medical Partnership Patient Participation Group

Building on our Annual General Meeting in 2019 and the Understanding Patient Participation Group report in 2020, we are working with the Valens Medical Partnership to establish a single Patient Participation Group for its Primary Care Network (PCN).

We have chaired a series of online meetings with patients and practice staff to agree Terms of Reference and a process to recruit new members. We would hope this could form a model for other PCNs in the county.

Healthwatch Northumberland has provided invaluable support in helping us develop our new patient participation group. Establishing new, best practice protocols has enabled us to move our patient engagement forward in a very productive way, embracing change together with our patients, with new ideas for the future".

Pat Rigg, Valens Medical Group Patient Engagement Officer.

Clinical Research

There are 12 local Healthwatch in the North East which gives an effective and efficient way to gather views from across the region about health and social care services.

In February 2021 North East Commissioning Support (NECS) funded the Healthwatch network to carry out engagement with individuals and communities across the North East about their views and ideas to get more people to take part in clinical research in the UK. The NHS Long Term Plan's goal is for one million people taking part in clinical research by 2023/24.

In just three weeks using a mixture of an online survey and focus groups the North East Healthwatch gathered views from 597 people – nearly 20% from Northumberland. We heard about what motivates people to sign up as well as attitudes and perceptions of those carrying out the research. Key themes to influence an individual's decision included trusting the organisation running the research, with the NHS 'brand' being important to them, the idea of helping future generations was of highest importance as well as improving treatments and care.

What people told us was shared with NECS and will be used to help develop a plan for our area. If you want to take part in clinical trials have a look at the National Institute for Health Research website Be Part of Research.

My Right to Healthcare Cards

As part of an NHS campaign to increase registration with GPs, 'My Right to Healthcare Cards' are being rolled out across the country. The cards make clear the right to register and receive treatment from a GP Practice regardless of fixed address or ID. The cards provide an NHS telephone contact number and website. The cards should help homeless people, people who have moved, people who live on boats and many others who face difficulties registering with a GP. This is because they are often asked for proof of address even though this is not needed.

We have helped to distribute these cards to organisations who saw a benefit for the users of their services. We have sent out 200 cards so far and have orders for a further 470. We are awaiting feedback as to how valuable they have been.

Responding to COVID-19

Healthwatch Northumberland plays an important role in helping people to get the information they need, especially through the pandemic. The insight we collect is shared with both Healthwatch England and local partners to ensure services are operating as best as possible during the pandemic.

This year we helped people by:

- Developing a dedicated COVID-19 information page on our website
- Providing up to date advice on the COVID-19 response locally
- Linking people to reliable up-to-date information
- Supporting the vaccine roll-out
- Helping people to access the services they need

The main issue people have contacted us about:

COVID-19 vaccination programme

In the early stages of the vaccination programme we had a number of enquiries around access and travel, who would be invited to make an appointment and when.

As the programme continued people were concerned about how and when they could visit loved ones in care homes.

Helping Michael and Irene

Michael got in touch at the beginning of 2021 about his 85 year old mother Irene, who is registered blind.

Irene had been invited to make an appointment for a COVID-19 vaccination at a centre 23 miles from her home in North Northumberland and was worried about how she would get there.

Healthwatch Northumberland contacted Irene's GP practice to discuss transport options to the vaccination centre.

Transport was arranged for Irene through Age UK Northumberland, which took her to and from both her first and second vaccination appointments in Newcastle.

Helping you to find the answers

Our information and signposting service has helped 300 people across Northumberland find the answers to questions about health and social care services. As well as issues around accessing primary care services such as GP and dental services, we have heard from people wanting to know how to make a complaint and where to find local support for specific conditions such as hearing loss.

Aran called because he was anxious his dentist had struck him off his list. Aran received a text reminder to book a routine appointment but when he tried to do so was informed his dentist was not taking on 'new' patients and was unable to get an appointment. Email correspondence to the dentist had not had a response.

We contacted the dental practice and found that Aran had not been removed from the list but that he would not be prioritised for a routine appointment as he had not had treatment or a check up in the last two years. Instead they were working through backlog of those whose treatment may have been cut short due to COVID-19 and those with urgent needs.

We arranged for Aran to be added to the waiting list for a routine appointment.

Aran said "Thanks for clearing that up for me. The way the receptionist explained it made it sound like I would not be contacted again and had been removed from their books. I'm glad that is not the case and thanks again for your help."

Richard 34, received a letter from his GP practice saying as he was outside of the catchment area he should reregister with another practice. Richard questioned this and the practice said it was taking the opportunity to revise its list because of the COVID-19 situation.

Richard was reluctant to change to the suggested practice due to a previous poor experience with a family member. Also the original practice provides the extended hours 'hub' for the alternative practice which as Richard works, he is more likely to use.

We looked at what the practice advertised as the areas it covered. It is a large rural area and as Richard's village was mentioned, we advised him to write to the Practice Manager setting out his case. A few weeks later Richard emailed us:

"Just to let you know I received an email last week from (the) medical practice. It confirmed I am in their catchment area and can remain a patient. Thank you for your help."

Sam called her GP practice to ask about cervical screening as her last test was three years ago. She was told twice by the practice that she was not due for a test as it was done every five years.

Sam checked the NHS website which confirmed the test for her age group was every three years. She told the practice what she had read and they accepted the information and arranged an appointment.

Sam was pleased her situation was resolved. She was concerned that other women may have been given the wrong information which could have serious consequences.

We contacted the Practice Manager to ask about policies and training procedures and received assurances staff understood the correct information to give patients.

Volunteers

At Healthwatch Northumberland we are supported by 12 volunteers who help us find out what people think is working, and what improvements people would like to make to services.

This year our volunteers:

- Helped people have their say from home, by having conversations over the telephone and helping run online forums
- Made wellbeing calls on behalf of Northumberland County Blind Association as part of our local COVID-19 response
- Created digital content on our websites and social media
- Provided technical and administrative support at online meetings, training and events
- Helped distribute our information leaflets to people's homes
- Co-designed desk-based research to find out how services could be improved
- Helped with administrative tasks to support the running of Healthwatch Northumberland

Lorna, Community Engagement Volunteer

Last year saw Lorna, a member of her local Action4Acomb Community Group, heavily involved in setting up a local COVID-19 support response.

The Acomb support network helped distribute over 600 of our 'Useful Numbers' cards. Lorna also provided support at online meetings, was involved with our GP online access project and has compiled a database of Northumberland Village Halls.

Lorna says "I've enjoyed contributing in a variety of ways as part of the Healthwatch Northumberland team and would recommend it to others who might consider volunteering. Listening to the views of local users of services is an honour especially when it ultimately makes a difference to improving service provision."

Colin, Community Engagement Volunteer

Colin was shielding for most of last year but that didn't put a stop to his volunteering. Despite having no experience of virtual platforms and being registered as partially sighted, Colin's perseverance along with some technical support meant he could join us for meetings and forums on Zoom. His new skills enabled him to link up with local community groups and he wrote about the positive impact of getting online for our newsletter.

Colin says "Volunteering during lockdown meant that I learnt lots and could take part in activities online. Being able to use Zoom meant that I kept in touch with the outside world which had a positive impact on my mental health."

Hayley, Community Engagement Volunteer

Hayley joined the team just as the first lockdown began. She trialled our very first efforts at running induction and training online, providing helpful feedback at every stage.

She quickly became an invaluable member of the team, supporting projects such as developing the Valens Patient Participation Group, supporting our telephone callback service and making client contact calls for Northumberland County Blind Association. Hayley is also the lead volunteer for The Hygiene Bank in West Northumberland.

Hayley says "I've loved volunteering over the last year with Healthwatch Northumberland. I wanted to use the skills I already had and be part of my local community. COVID-19 has meant that I haven't done what I thought I would, but instead I've been given the chance to do some work for Healthwatch Northumberland that was new to me. It's really helped my confidence and I love feeling part of a team."

Leah, Office Support Volunteer

Volunteering from home, Leah continued to support us through every stage of the pandemic. During our initial Covid-19 community response, she made wellbeing calls to clients on behalf of Northumberland County Blind Association. Over the rest of the year, she updated databases, co-produced our work on young people and mental health, provided digital expertise on Zoom and supported our social media campaigns by running Instagram 'takeover' days.

Leah says "I joined Healthwatch Northumberland in November 2019 so was able to enjoy a few months in the office with everyone before the pandemic hit. Since then I've been doing as much as I can online, which we have all had to get used to! The past year has been difficult for everyone, especially vulnerable people who may have disabilities or mental health issues, so I feel fortunate to have hopefully made a small difference through wellbeing calls and working on the young people's mental health project. I think everyone in the team has adapted so well and it has been great catching up with them via Zoom for quizzes and games."

Next steps and thank you

The effects of the COVID-19 pandemic on communities, individuals and their health and social care services will last beyond 2021.

We will continue to deliver our core activities and specific projects which will reflect on the pandemic experience and also ideas for the future.

Core Activities

Community Engagement: We will engage with communities of place and experience in Northumberland. We will do this in person and online.

Our Annual Survey in summer 2021 will identify the issues that people think are the most pressing for us to work on.

We will repeat the Your Voice initiative to ensure people who are not always listened to have an opportunity to be heard.

Communication and Marketing: We will provide relevant and accessible information and signpost people to sources of help and support. We will tell people about the difference we have made and encourage them to become involved with Healthwatch Northumberland.

Strategic Influence: We will use our statutory role on the Northumberland Health and Wellbeing Board and membership of strategic decision-making and scrutiny bodies to share what we have learnt from communities. We will work with the emerging Integrated Care System.

Volunteering: We will recruit, train and value volunteers so that we are a more diverse and inclusive organisation.

Top three projects for 2021-22

Home Care: Gathering the experiences of people who received paid for care at home. (summer 2021)

End of Life: Working with NHS Northumberland Clinical Commissioning Group and Northumbria Healthcare NHS Foundation Trust to develop a greater understanding about what people in Northumberland expect at the very end of their life. (autumn 2021)

Experience of those with sight loss: What people with sight loss can expect from services - the 'care pathways' - and how these work in practice. (winter 2021)

Thank you

By continuing to tell us your views and experiences of NHS and social care services, you are helping us ensure people get the support they need both during and after COVID-19. Thank you to everyone who shared their thoughts and experiences with us over the last 12 months.

Statutory statements

About us

Healthwatch Northumberland, Adapt (NE), Burrn Lane, Hexham, Northumberland NE46 3HN.

Healthwatch Northumberland uses the Healthwatch Trademark when undertaking our statutory activities as covered by the licence agreement.

The way we work

Involvement of volunteers and lay people in our governance and decision-making.

Our Healthwatch Northumberland board consists of ten members who work on a voluntary basis to provide direction, oversight and scrutiny to our activities. Our board ensures that decisions about priority areas of work reflect the concerns and interests of our diverse local community. Through 2020/21 the board met five times and made decisions on matters such as our Operational Plan, which sets out the issues on which the Healthwatch Northumberland team works.

This year the board wanted to make sure that members of the public had different ways to get in touch with us while we could not get out into communities. They were very concerned that not everything was done online. So we developed our 'text and ring back' service. The board also made a commitment to use Equality, Diversity and Inclusion as the focus to improve what we do, why we do it and the difference we make.

We ensure wider public involvement in deciding our work priorities. For example we used insight from information and signposting enquiries to understand the experience of people accessing services online.

We invited senior staff from NHS Northumberland Clinical Commissioning Group (CCG) and Public Health to our Annual General Meeting to hear from the public and talk about what was being done to ensure people are not excluded.

Following patient feedback we reviewed how easy it is to use GP websites for routine interactions such as repeat prescriptions and making appointments. The report is currently with the CCG for comment.

We used our social and print media to ask about people's experience of keeping in touch with loved ones living in care homes. From the responses we held online focus groups and surveyed local care homes. The report with recommendations will be published in July 2021.

From the 800 responses to our Annual Survey we knew that people were concerned about mental health services, especially for young people. This became one of our priorities for the year and we held a focus group with young people, put out a survey and held an online forum about the Kooth service. The report is with the CCG for comment.

Methods and systems used across the year's work to obtain people's views and experience

We use a wide range of approaches to ensure that as many people as possible have the opportunity to provide us with insight about their experience of health and care social services. During 2020/21 we have been available by phone, by email, via our website and social media channels, attended virtual meetings of community groups and forums, provided our own virtual activities and engaged with the public through social and print media.

We are committed to taking additional steps to ensure we obtain the views of people from diverse backgrounds who are often not heard by health and care decision makers. This year we have done this by working with Northumberland County Blind Association to ensure the COVID-19 experiences of people with sight loss were heard. When a GP practice was closing we worked with Being Woman so that people of Black, Asian and minority ethnic backgrounds were included in the engagement by the CCG.

We were invited to take part in Northumberland County Council's virtual International Women's Day celebration. We use the 'Choose to Challenge' theme to talk about women's health inequalities. We ensure that this Annual Report is made available to as many members of the public and partner organisations as possible. We publish it online and in hard copy and it is sent to all key stakeholders.

Responses to recommendations and requests

We had no providers who did not respond to requests for information or recommendations. This year, due to the COVID-19 pandemic, we did not make use of our Enter and View powers. Consequently, no recommendations or other actions resulted from this area of activity. There were no issues or recommendations escalated by our Healthwatch to Healthwatch England Committee and so no resulting special reviews or investigations.

Health and Wellbeing Board

Healthwatch Northumberland is represented on the Northumberland Health and Wellbeing Board by our Chair, David Thompson. During 2020/21 he has effectively carried out this role with positive contributions based on feedback and evidence from patients and service users, particularly encouraging engagement with groups less often heard. He also wrote and submitted two papers in response to the Integrated Care System proposals and the draft Health and Social Care White Paper. He met Sir Liam Donaldson, Chair of the North East and North Cumbria Integrated Care System, to discuss how Healthwatch can play a part in the new structure.
